WHY ATLANTIC AWNING?

Our Quality Process Since 1888

Atlantic Awning is a family-owned and operated business, and as such, we take great pride in producing products that are made to the highest quality standards while providing excellent customer service to our valued customers.

We work closely with our customers throughout the entire cycle of their project to ensure that they receive the care and service that we have always prided ourselves on.

Our talented team of professionals pay close attention to each and every detail of our customized projects, all of which are hand made with the finest craftsmanship.

From our first site visit to the final installation, we keep in close contact to ensure that projects are customized to the customers exact specifications, and that every customer is fully satisfied with their project and quality of service.

Cheryl Yennaco rebuilds a business by making the tough decisions, hiring the right team and setting meaningful and measurable goals.

Last year was our best year, and we're at another point of growth right now," says Cheryl Yennaco, owner and general manager of Melrose, Mass.-based Atlantic Awnings. "That growth started when we decided to clean house and rebuild the business. It wasn't easy but it was worth it, and at this moment we have the best team we've ever had."

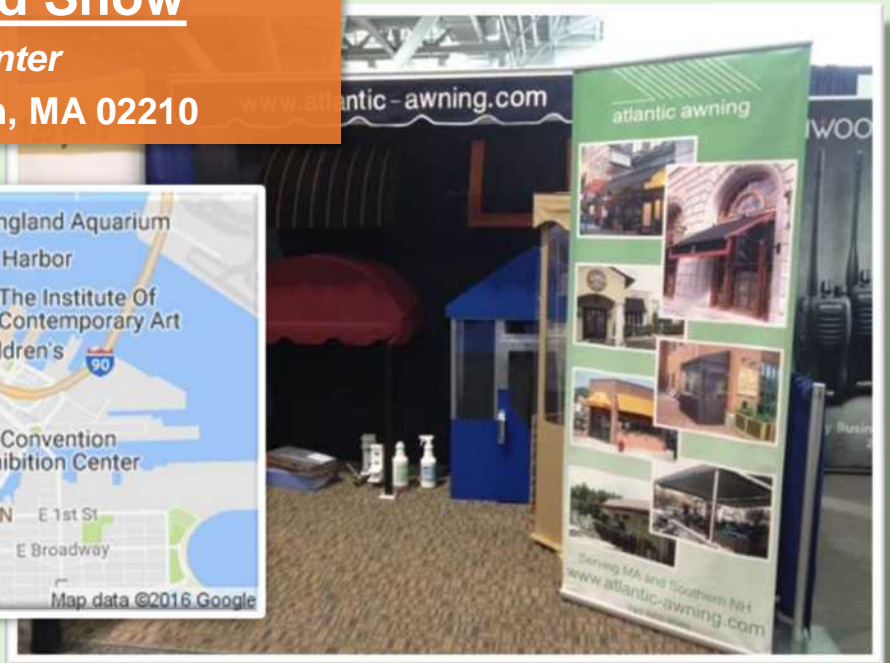

Yennaco is a third-generation awning shop owner, starting with her grandfather who owned Boston Awning with three partners. She grew up around awnings, working with her father at a company that he owned with his brother. While Atlantic Awning has been around since 1888, her family's involvement in the company began in 1981 when her father purchased the shop.
